Wednesday Morning, June 21, 1871.

THE Bradford Reporter says one of the delegates from that county to the late Democratic State Convention says the Convention adopted the Republican platform, and he believes would have nominated the Republican candidates if any one had suggested their names.

—The most expensive coal breaker in the anthracite regions has recently been completed on the coal lands of the Erie railway company, at Carbondale, Luzerne county. Its cost was $300,000. Schuylkill county has breakers costing $200,000, and the new breaker of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad company, at Scranton, cost $200,000.

THE Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin says: "They are having a hot fight up in Clearfield over their candidates for the Legislature on the Democratic ticket. The scrimmage is between Boyer and Lawshe. The latter is for Wallace. The Cameron Press says: 'Wallace always assassinates every Democrat he cannot use.' Six years ago he was foremost in the political assassination of S. G. Morrison, Esq., of this city, for expressing views that he pretends to indorse now. Of course he will beg Morrison's pardon."

ORGANIZE.—The State Central Com., has been called to meet in Altoona today (the 21st.) Let us hope that every member of the Committee will be present. The sooner we organize the better. Hon. Russell Errett, of Pittsburg has been appointed as chairman of the State Central Committee. It is an excellent appointment. Mr. Errett is universally known as a gentleman of high character, and his appointment will ensure a vigorous campaign. The Editor of the REPUBLICAN left yesterday for Altoona to meet the Committee.

The Reading Times and Dispath tells the following: That was a shary rebuff given on Tuesday by a colored citizen in the Court House to two of the delegates to the Democratic Convention, who, in passing out of the building, took occasion to denounce the "damn naguer" —for his presence there. "Why," said the colored man, "you have just voted to adopt the platform of the Harrisburg Convention, which indorses the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution, and bids for the colored vote, though you don't seem to have sense enough to know it." That negro votes a straight Republican ticket, and no mistake.

THE OLD KEYSTONE STATE, O. K.—The great unanimity in the proceedings of the late convention in Pennsylvania gives good evidence of her unflinching fidelity and devotion to the principles of the Republican party.

The nomination for state officers are unacceptionable, and calculated to bring out the full vote of the party. The endorsement of President Grant's administration in its every feature, and the entire willingness manifested to see it inaugurated the second time, give assurance of that cordiality and unanimity which will secure a triumphant victory in the state, at the next election, and have a mighty influence upon the politics of the country.

THE Pittsburg Post is startled at the idea, of the existence of which it has just learned, of bringing out Thomas A. Scott, the Railroad King, as a Presidential candidate. His qualifications our contemporary is prompt to indorse; but just at present Col. Scott is engaged in rather greater business than that of President of the United States, and it is growing on his hands every day. It is not so certain that he would consent to accept the position, the one he now occupies being the very first in the railroad world; but, jesting aside, the gentleman beyond any doubt possesses the capacity in a marked degree for the first office in the nation, and in himself is a first-rate type of the genuine through-and-through American character. Who will organize the first Scott club?—Pittsburg Commercial.

THE PEOPLE MUST STUDY POLITICS.

When a feeling of dissatisfaction with the management of public affairs begins to invade the ranks of the ruling party, either in the nation or in any State, it is usually made manifest by an exhibition of apathy on the part of a considerable number of those who make up the membership of the party, and to a greater or less extent by defections from its standard. Thus we sometimes see the political power of a State oscillate from one party to the other at short intervals of time, and by astonishingly large majorities. A very curious fact is that such changes often occur without any change in the essential principles of the respective parties.

If we were to explain such phenomena by assuming that some hundreds, thousands, or even tens of thousands of voters changed their political principles upon each occasion of this kind, we should probably underrate their stability of judgment and character. There is usually some obnoxious measure, some feature of party policy, or some action of party leaders which meets with the disapprobation of a portion of the members of the ruling party for the time being, and that disapprobation is expressed passively by remaining away from the polls, or actively by voting with the other party.

Even those who adopt this method of giving effect to their discontent must be conscious that it is a most inadequate, not to say irrational and dangerous remedy for political grievances. To take the case of the existing political parties, we hear now and then of dissatisfaction among Republicans at various measures for which their party, being in power, is held responsible. Now, supposing their dissatisfaction to be well founded, would it be a rational procedure to seek a remedy for their grievances in the restoration of the Democratic party to power? Passing by the respective platforms and avowed aims of the two parties, let us only consider how they are made up. The vast majority of Republicans are such because of their agreement in the great principles upon which their party was founded. Prominent among these principles were love of liberty, not for self alone, but for all; hatred of injustice and oppression; and patriotic devotion to the Union. Upon all of these points, save the last, they encountered the active opposition of the entire Democratic party, and it was in the same party that secession and rebellion found all their adherents and supporters. Opposition upon such vital points, implies not only profound differences of opinion and sentiment in regard to the questions at issue, but even constitutional differences of character among the masses of those who make up the two parties. The main issues which have divided the country since the time when the Republican party was organized have been, preeminently, issues involving the question of moral right, and the attitude men assumed in regard to them; that is, the party with which they ranged themselves, must have depended largely upon their inherent moral tendencies. Doubtless there were many individual exceptions, but the rule was sufficiently general to determine the tone and character of the parties. It is not too much to say for the Republican party that it has been in truth what it is sometimes derisively called by its opponents—"the party of moral ideas." That grand sympathy of sentiment and purpose which has bound together its members in a holy struggle for the triumph of humanity and justice, gives full warrant for the claim that it contains within its ranks the best moral elements in the nation. Whatever changes of party name or party organization the future may bring about, we may be assured that so long as the men who have fought side by side in the great battle against human slavery shall survive, a large majority of them are likely to be found fighting on the same side again, whenever the issue is one involving a question of moral right. In short, it is in the ranks of the Republican party that any party intent on wholesome progress to a higher and juster civilization must find the majority of its adherents.

Suppose now that a portion of the members of this party, feeling that it falls short of what they desire of it, should, through apathy or defection, bring about the success of the Democratic party. They would find themselves an insignificant handful in a party with whose controlling majority they had few political aims or sentiments in common. Unable to control or stem the current, they would be as drift-wood upon its surface. Their only hope would be in again affiliating themselves with the tried comrades they had deserted, and in endeavoring to undo the mischief they had done by helping them to regain their ascendency.

Does it not seem evident that there must be a better remedy for any political evils which may exist than the abortive one just described? Is it not at least, probable that all progressive spirits, all who aim at true reform and aspire for the elevation of the masses to a better condition will find congenial coworkers in the Republican party rather than elsewhere? Are not these things in perfect accord with the work to which the Republican party has heretofore been devoted?

What then is to be done? Unquestionably our party has new and great duties to undertake and social and economic questions of vast importance to solve in the interest of the great body of the people. If there are those who think it slow to comprehend the issues of the hour or reluctant to begin its proper work, what better can they do than to advocate and urge their views within its ranks? Where else will there be equal occasion to find sympathy and co-operation? It is the right even of the humblest member of a party to endeavor to impress his views upon its policy. Its actual course being the resultant of the various forces at work within it, each may hope that his influence will not be wholly without effect, and it is the duty of each to do his best for the success of those ideas which seem to him most conducive to the public good. The official representatives of the people are on the alert for every whisper that may indicate the will of their constituents; and while the dishonest among them may take advantage of apathy or inattention to promote their personal interests at the expense of the nation, there are few, if any, among them who would not hasten to bow before a pronounced public opinion. If, however, this in any case should fail, there would still remain, the remedy of an early exchange of the representative himself for one who would be more regardful of his duties. A change of men, when it is they only who are at fault, is far more rational than a change of party, without any improvement in party principles.

But in order that the membership of a party may exert such an influence upon its public men as to restrain them from injurious measures, or spur them on to wholesome ones which they may be disposed to neglect, it is necessary that the people should become earnest students of public affairs and understand the bearing of all important measures upon the public interests. It is a favorite theory with the advocates of despotic forms of government that the people must needs devote themselves exclusively to their personal concerns—the business of making a living or the enjoyment of the pleasures of life—leaving all the affairs of state to a monarch and a governing class. None of us would hesitate to denounce this view as one which dishonors human nature in presupposing man to be unfit for freedom. Yet in proportion as we neglect to acquaint ourselves with public affairs and to qualify ourselves to exert a positive influence upon them, in that degree do we conform our own conduct to this insulting theory. If the people will not take the trouble to form definite ideas upon national interests and policy, there will always be persons enough ready to relieve them of the trouble and become, in fact, if not in name, their rulers. Nor need it be said that they will usually rule in their own interest. Politics, at which so many rail as being something essentially mean and dirty, are really a part of the business of every citizen of a republic, and those who neglect this business, place in jeopardy their dearest rights. "Eternal vigilance is the price of Liberty." Every freeman should be in some measure a statesman, and the better statesmen the masses are, the better will they be governed.

It is this studious attention to political affairs in which a remedy for political maladies is to be sought, no matter what may be the names or platforms of the parties which divide the country. That indifference, negligence or ignorance in regard to public affairs on the part of the people should be punished by neglect or even betrayal of their interests is not the fault of any party but of human nature itself. Their remedy for such evils, therefore, is not to be found in the overthrow of a party, but in a reform of their own conduct. They must develop upon a larger range of political subjects such a pronounced and definite public sentiment as will control the formation of party platforms and they must prepare themselves to exert a commanding influence upon political nominations. In short they must learn that whatever their various individual pursuits may be, there is an equal serious business which belongs to them all in common and which imperatively claims their attention, viz: politics which simply means that which concerns the interests of the State. When this is done, any political party which may be placed in power will be tolerably true to its trust, and we shall not see men deserting a party whose recognized principles they endorse in the vague hope that some other party will conduct itself with a more conscientious regard for the welfare of the people.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

It always affords us pleasure to hear of any of "Old Centre's" sons being honored. Col. John H. Keatley is a native of Harris township, this county, and we know that his numerous friends there and throughout our county will be pleased to read the following, which we clip from the Daily Nonpareil, published at Council Bluffs, Iowa:

The Republican Convention of Pottawattemie county, at its session yesterday, passed a resolution by a unanimous vote, instructing the delegates from this county to the State Convention, to support and to urge Col. John H. Keatley of this city for the nomination of Lieutenant Governor. We have only time to-day to say that Col. Keatley is well known throughout the State, and has during the past two months received favorable mention for this position at the hands of all the principal Republican papers. With the unanimous endorsement of the Convention of his own County, and zealously supported, as he is, by all the Counties in the Western half of the State, he will loom up formidably before the State Convention, and will receive the nomination, if the candidate for Governor is taken from the Eastern part of the State. His fitness for the position is conceded by all, and his nomination would be a fit recognition of his long and faithful services to the party. We subjoin the resolution adopted by the Convention yesterday:

Resolved, By this Convention, That the delegates hereby elected to the State Republican Convention at Des Moines, are instructed to use all the honorable means in their power to secure the nomination of Col. John H. Keatley, of this city, for Lieutenant-Governor.

PHILIPSBURG, June 14, 1871.

MR. EDITOR:—The members of the Philipsburg Cornet Band desire, through the medium of your paper, to return their warmest thanks to the citizens of Bellefonte for their uniform kindness, generous hospitality and kind tokens of appreciation which they extended during our recent trip to that pleasant town. Especially are our thanks due to the officers and members of Centre Lodge, I. O. of O. F., to whose courtesy we owe much of the pleasure derived from our visit; to the whole-souled proprietor and gentlemanly clerks of the Bush House, where our wants were promptly attended to and abundantly supplied; also the Editors of the Watchman and Republican for their words of commendation and encouragement extended to us through the columns of their papers; not forgetting Jeff. Boyer, of the Ward House, Tyrone, who generously entertained the band free of charge. The pleasant associations connected with this visit shall long be remembered and we hope soon to have an opportunity of reciprocating, in some degree, at least, the friendship and good-will which we have received.

Signed in behalf of the Band,

C. B. SANFORD,
Leader.

PREJUDICE AGAINST COLOR.—This strong element of Democratic power is fast dying out. Democracy are beginning to see that the vote of a man of color counts as much as a white man's and instead of resorting to abuse as formerly they are forced to accept the logic of events and with honeyed words and choice baits are striving to entice him within their embrace.

A year or two ago their chosen epithets were, "Dirty Nigger"! "Foul pest of Society" and others of infinitely worse character; but to-day they speak of him as a "colored voter," and have no hesitancy in voting the same ticket, and even in the same ballot box.

There is even yet some hope of reform in the degenerate old party, and if it ever gains the ascendency in the government its rule may not be utter ruin.

Now in the day of their merciful visitation let them accept the gospel of the "New Departure."

F. P. Greene, lost a horse Monday night, pity.

VALLANDIGHAM DEAD.

HOW THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED—HE TOOK UP THE WRONG PISTOL.

C. L. Vallandigham, the leader of the Democracy in Ohio, and author of the "New Departure" is dead. We clip the following account of how the accident occurred from a special dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial:

It appears that no one was present with Vallandigham when the accident occurred but ex-Lieutenant Governor McBurney, who has been associated with him in the defence of McGehan. McBurney had expressed some doubts as to the theory that Meyers had shot himself, and Vallandigham picked up a pistol from the table, saying he would show him in half a second. Two pistols were on the table, one unloaded, and he, by mistake, took up the loaded one. He put it in his pocket and withdrew it, keeping the muzzle next his body. Just as it was leaving the pocket it was discharged, the ball entering, it is said, near the same place Myers was shot.—He at once ejaculated "oh, murder," and said he had taken the wrong pistol.—While the examination was going on, he watched the surgeons at work with eager eyes, and even assisted them in their search for the ball.

The Pittsburg Commercial of the 19th inst., contains an ably written and most truthful article in regard to the present condition of the Democratic party and the position he occupied in that party at the time of his death. It says that the party "in the death of Clement L. Vallandigham, that wing of the Democratic party of which he was leader has suffered a severe loss," and adds, "whatever opinions we may hitherto have entertained as to the reasons and motives underlying his late progressive action, we are bound now to give him the benefit of the doubt, for he is dead and cannot make reply." After giving him the benefit of the doubt, and after speaking of the dogged "Bourbonism" of the Democratic party and the incalculable mischiefs which had arisen from it, the Commercial goes on to say:

No political party is better than the average sentiment and practice of its members, nor can it recast its character, or change the current of its gravitation, by resolves made upon paper. Nevertheless it seems probable that had Vallandigham lived, he would have exerted a marked influence in shaping the future policy of that organization, and it is to be feared that his death leaves a void not easily to be filled. We speak therefore in all personal and political sincerity, when we say that we are deeply sorry for his untimely taking off. He had shown that he possessed the qualities of a leader, firmness, decision, energy, the capacity to discern and the courage to assume the responsibilities of the situation. The fierceness, passion, extravagance and folly of the major portion of the Southern press, and the toadying sycophancy of its Northern echoes, would have suited his genius to rebuke, and afforded him a fit field for its exercise. For it is chiefly their mingled insolence and ignorance which has all along kept the party back and rendered it inimical to the best interests of the country. And we fear that these journals, intrenched in superstition, prejudice and hatred of race, will take a new lease of life from his decease, and lapse still further toward the old dark days of their implacable animosity. No matter who he is, or what his antecedents may have been, we hail the advent of any man who will help to overthrow the horrible attitude of that party on these great questions of human prerogatives and rights. We have no desire to taunt that party, but the fact is unquestionable that its political faith is bitterly hostile to every principle of American Government, that its habits are utterly incompatible with its claim to the custody of the affairs of the nation, and that, while there are individual members of it who accept the doctrine of the whole people as the source of political power, yet as a party it still retains all the hateful and intolerable features which characterized it in the old days of its aristocratic ascendency.

Therefore we welcome the sympathy and aid of every man who, having been conspicuous as a friend of the rebellion and of the causes out of which it sprung, is willing now to co-operate with loyal men in planting the Government upon the impregnable foundation of equal rights. We know that blarney is not statesmanship, that justice is the only true basis of conciliation, and that the professions of our political opponents as respects the Constitutional Amendments, are to be received with due caution. But whether conscientiously or otherwise made, the declaration of Vallandigham that the time had arrived in which to accept and abide the logic of the altered condition of affairs, was an acknowledgment that the solemn convictions of the American people with regard to the questions which grew out of the war, had all along been right. To To this confession the whole body of that party must be brought before it can be entrusted with political power, or before the country itself can be placed upon a permanent footing of peace and quiet, and we therefore morn the loss of Vallandigham, as of any man who should give promise of helping to bring this desirable event about.

From the Grand Army Journal.

YOU HAVN'T PUT ANY ON MY PAPA'S GRAVE.

With sable-draped banners, and slow measured tread,
The flower-laden ranks pass the gates of the dead;
And seeking each mound where a comrade's form rests,
Leave tear-bedewed garlands to bloom on his breast.
Ended at last is the labor of love—
Once more through the gateway the saddened line move—
A wailing of anguish, a sobbing of grief,
Falls low on the ear of the battle-scarred chief:
Close crouched by the portals, a sunny haired child
Besought him in accents which grief rendered wild:—

Oh, sir! He was good, and they said he died brave—
Why! why! did you pass my dear papa'sgrave?
I know he was poor, but as kind and as true
As ever marched into the battle with you—
His grave is so humble, no stone marks the spot,
You may not have seen it. Oh, say you did not!
For my poor heart will break if you knew he was there,
And thought him too lowly your off'rings to share.
He didn't die lowly—he poured his heart's blood
In rich crimson streams, from the top-crowning sod
Of the breastworks which stood in the front of the fight—
And died shouting Onward! for God and the right!
O'er all his dead comrades, your bright garlands wave,
But you havn't put ONE on MY papa's grave.
If mama were here—but she lies by his side,
Her weary heart broke when our dear papa died.

This young orphan'd maid has full cause for her grief—
Then up in his arms from the hot dusty street
He lifted the maiden, while in through the gate
The long line repasses, and many an eye
Pay fresh tribute of tears to the lone orphan's sigh.

This way it is—here,sir—right under this tree;
They lie close together, with just room for me.

Halt! Cover with roses each lowly green mound,
A love pure as this, makes these graves hallowed ground.

Oh! thank you, kind sir! I ne'er can repay
The kindness you've shown little Nellie to-day:
But I'll pray for you here, each day while I live,
'Tis all that a poor soldier's orphan can give.
I shall see papa soon, our dear mamma, too—
I dreamed so last night, and I know 'twill come true:
And they will bless you, I know, when I tell
How you folded your arms round their dear little Nell—
How you cheered her sad heart, and soothed it it to rest,
And hushed its wild throbs on your strong noble breast:
And when the kind angels shall call you to come,
We'll welcome you there to our beautiful home,
Where death never comes, his black banners to wave;
And the beautiful flowers ne'er weep o'er a grave.

For the REPUBLICAN.

A Pleasant Gathering—From 1856 to 1871—A Family Reunion, &c., &c.

Burbank, Wayne county Ohio, was recently the scene of one of those pleasant events which never fail in affording joy and pleasure. In the fall of 1856, J. B. Holloway, Esq., now of Burbank Ohio, removed from Aaronsburg Pa., to the state of Ohio. His family consisted of nine children, eight brothers and one sister. At the time of removal, the family circle was severed for the first time, two of the sons remaining in Pa., and the rest coming to Ohio. Being seperated for the space of fifteen years, and a most remarkable Providence having attended each member of the family, it was proposed to have a family reunion. The time suggested for said reunion, was the first week in June—but the mother being taken very ill, and not expected to survive,the children hastened home and the Reunion was had on the 21st of May 1871.

On this day, the father and mother, now well stricken in years, had the extreme pleasure of once more seeing their large family in their own midst at home. The occasion was very pleasant and no doubt profitable. In the morning all the family—excepting the mother, who had not sufficiently recovered from her illness—attended divine services in a body. Upon their return to the house, the children quite surprised the parents in the presentation of some valuable gifts. The father was the recipient of a beautiful silver-headed cane, suitably engraved. This gift was accompanied with appropriate remarks by one of the sons, stating, "that on an occasion so interesting as the present, they thought it becoming to give expression in some measure of their esteem and love for those who had tenderly watched over them in years past. The cane, mounted with silver, was a representation of riches, and reminded us of the treasures that we are to lay up in Heaven. A cane is a means of defence, and the recipient might use it for his protection when necessary, as his judgment might best dictate. Also, that it was a means of support—something to lean upon—and emblematic of that support which all need in the conflicts of life, and expressive of the rod and staff which is promised unto those who are faithful unto death. It was presented with the view that he should carry it, and rest upon it as a support, but should continue to rest upon Him, who is the rod and staff of all true believers in life—and also goes with his, through the valley and shadow of death. The father responded in a very feeling and appropriate manner, saying, "that this present was entirely a surprise, but that he accepted the gift with great satisfaction and pleasure."

He fully reciprocated the kind feelings that prompted it that it was a season of joy to his heart, to have all his children with him once more—and that the hope he now had in Him who was the Rod and Staff of his people, he believed would not fail him in the evening of his life. His anxious wish and prayer to God was that we might at last all be inseperably united as one family in Heaven. The mother was presented with a beautiful dress, and likewise addressed with touching remarks. A number of other valuable presentations were made by different members of the family. After this it was proposed that prayer be offered for the great goodness of God to all the family, when a long and fervent prayer was made by one of the sons. The scene was truly impressive and beautiful—so many of a family with aged parents all bending the knee before the heavenly throne—uniting in thanksgiving and supplicating the continued mercies of heaven. It was a scene and time long to be remembered by all present. In the evening the family again attended divine worship—when one of the number—being a minister in the Evangelical Luthern Church, preached an impressive sermon. On the following day, the family seperated with the understanding to have another reunion one year from date, being May 21st 1872.

VOCATION &C.

During the late rebellion three of the sons served their country faithfully in the Union army, one serving one year and two three years. One was a member of the 29th O. V. I., another of the 177th O. V. I., and the third of the 148th P. V. At present the children are all married but three, two of these are physicians, one practicing medicine in Jacksonville, Centre county, Pa., the other at Akron, Ohio. One is a minister in the Lutheran church and resides in Cumberland, Md. Three are engaged in the mercantile business in Akron Ohio, one a dealer and manufacturer of boots and shoes in Burbank, Ohio. The youngest still at home attending school, and the sister resides in the same place of parents. The reunion of so large a family, is one of the sunny days of life which is the lot of few to enjoy. What a satisfaction, what a sense of joy to aged parents, to see around them in the evening of life so large a family of children!

Equally pleasant must it be to the children. How faintly, however, it sets fourth that inexpressible joy and felicity that shall fill the soul in the heavenly world where a permanent reunion shall be found complete in the love of Jesus Christ. G. W. S.

Down the Mill.

The evening of every man's life is coming on apace. The day of life will soon be spent. The sun, though it may be up in mid-heaven, will pass swiftly down in the western sky, and disappear. What shall light up man's path when the sun of life has gone down? He must travel on to the next world; but what shall illumine his footsteps after the nightfall of death, amid the darkness of his journey? What question more important, more practical, more solemn for each reader of our journal to ask himself? That is a long journey to travel without light, without a guide,and without a friend, Yet every man must perform it. The time is not far distant when all men will begin the journey. There is an evening star in the natural world. Its radiance is bright and beautiful, and cheering to the benighted traveler. But life's evening star is a good hope of Heaven. Its beauty and brilliancy are reflected from the sun of righteousness, whose bright rays light up the evening of life, and throw their radiance quite across the darkness of the grave into Immanuel's land. It has illuminated the footsteps of many a traveler into eternity. It is of priceless value. A thousand worlds cannot purchase it; yet it is offered without money and without price to him who will penitently and thankfully receive it.

Moral Influence.

The influence of a good example is far-reaching; for our experience and conflicts with the world lead us at times to indulge misanthropic sentiments, and charge all men with selfish and impure motives. The play of pride, predjudice and passion, and the eagerness manifested by the great majority of men to advance their own interests, often at the expense of others, and in violation of the golden rule, cause us to look with suspicion on the best intents of others. Arrogance, hypocrisy, treachery, and violence, every day outrage justice, till we are almost disposed to distrust human nature, and become discouraged. But amid all that is sad and disheartening in this busy, noisy world, now and then there is presented to us a life of such uniform virtue that we recognize in it a character that brings hope for the perfect development and ultimate regeneration of our race. Such characters are precious, and such examples should be held up to the world for his admiration and imitation; they should be snatched from oblivion and treasured in the hearts and thoughts of all who are in process of forming habits and maturing character.

CRANBERRIES FOR ERYSIPELAS.—A correspondent of the Providence Journal, says, that in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred, cranberries applied as a poultice will effectually cure the erysipelas. There is not an instance known where it has failed to effect a cure, when faithfully applied before the sufferer was in a dying state. Two or three applications generally do the work.

A Prose Poem.

The following poem, from the San Francisco Golden Era, it is not Homeric in style, but complete in itself for it ends with a total annihilation of the combatants:

On a pine woodshed, in alley dark, where scattered moonbeams, shifting through a row of tottering chimneys and awnings torn and dropping, fell, strede back and forth, with stiff and tense drawn muscles and peculiar tread, a cat.

His name was Norval; on yonder neighboring shed his father caught the rats that came in squads from the streets beyond Dupont, in search of food and strange adventure.

Grim war he courted, and his twisted tail and spine upheaving in fantastic curves, and claws distended, and ears flatly impressed against a head thrown back, defiantly told of impending strife.

With eyes agrim and screeching blasts of war, and steps as silent as the falling dew, young Norval crept along the splintered edge, and gazed a moment through the darkness down, with a tail swaging triumphantly.

Then, with an imprecation and a growl—perhaps an oath of direst vengence hissed—he started back, and crooked his body like a letter S, or rather like a U inverted, stood in fierce expectancy.

'Twas well. With eyeballs glaring and ears aslant and open mouth, in which two rows of fangs stood forth in sharp and dread conformity slap up a pest from out the dark below a head appeared.

A dreadful tocsin of infernal strife young Norval uttered, then, with a face unblanched and moustache standing straight before his nose, and tail flung wildly to the passing breeze, stepped back in cautious invitation to the foe.

Approaching each other, and with preparations dire, each cat surveyed the vantage of the field. Around they walked, with tails uplifted and backs high in the air, while from their mouths, in accents hissing with consuming rage, dropped brief but awful sentences of hate.

Twice around the roof they went in circle, each eye upon the foe intently bent, then sideways moving, as is wont with cats, gave one long—drawn, terrific, savage yeow, and buckled in.

The fur flew. A mist of hair hung o'er the battle-field. High above the din of passing wagons rose the dreadful tumult of the struggling cats. So gleamed their eyes in frenzy that to me, who saw the conflict from the window near, naught else was plain but gory stars that moved in orbs most eccentric.

An hour they struggled in tempestuous fight, when faint and fainter grew the squall of war, until all sound was hushed. Then went I forth with lantern and the field surveyed—what saw I?

Six claws, one ear, of teeth, perhaps a handful; naught else except a solitary tail. That tail was Norval's by a ring I knew it. The ear was—but we'll let the matter pass. The tail will do without the ear.

THE Democratic party of Pennsylvania occupies a most humiliating position. At its recent State convention at Harrisburg it in effect confesses to having been a slanderer and libeler, retracts and apologises for its misrepresentations, and acknowledges that the policy of the Republican party has been correct, and deprecates "the discussion of issues which have been settled in the manner and by the authority constitutionally appointed." At their conventions heretofore the Democrats have taken just the opposite position, and have declared the measures of the Republican party to be revolutionary, unconstitutional and void. Such inconsistency needs no comment. It may safely be left with honorable men in that party to determine whether they will continue a connection with such an organization.

THE microscope shows the color of the hair due to a deposition of pigment in its substance. When the hair glands become enfeebled, this pigment fails. One after another the hairs become white, or fall out, producing baldness. Baldness is easy to prevent but hard to cure.—Ayer's Hair Vigor stops it; even restores the hair sometimes; always restores its color. Immediate renovation is at once visible; softness, freshness and the gloss of youth. This great ornament should be preserved, since it can be by Ayer's Hair Vigor, which is beautifully clean and free from anything injurious to the hair.—Tribune, Springville, N. Y.

GEN. MCCANDLESS.—The Carlisle Herald says, in reference to the Democratic nominee for Auditor General: "Colonel McCandless, who heads the ticket, when offered the position of a brigadier general, refused it on the ground that his self-respect would not allow him to countenance the measures of the Republican administration, by accepting promotion from it, and declaring that the post of honor was that of private citizen, he withdrew from the field at a time when soldiers were sorely needed."

—On the 4th inst., John Lechling, of Lynn township, Lehigh county, aged about fifty-six years, died from the effects of a wound inflicted by himself on his throat with a pocket knife, with the intention of ending his career.

Tribute to the Beautiful.

There is no sphere in life so humble, no labor so continuous or wearying, no occupation so purely industrial, that men and women in it will not gladly add to its toil for the gratification of paying some tribute to beauty in its performance. The very implements of labor are adorned, and from the rude painting of the beam of a plow to the fancy brass mountings of a locomotive engine, everywhere some place is found for human nature to add something for the sake of taste, where the general design seemed wholly devoted to the most rigid idea of use. Beauty will not consent to be thrust into the narrow corner of men's leisure hours, where Spencer's philosophy would put her, but insist that everywhere along our most wearisome paths we should place little shrines where we may cast some votive offering in passing. The sailor delights in the carved and gilt billet-head of his ship, or glances with pleasure at a gilded ball placed above his main truck, where the very height from which it gleams down upon him like a star awakens thoughts that mount upward in his own soul. He loves to see the bright colored pennants flying, and to dress his vessel with them, as he would see his sweetheart bedecked with ribbons. The most practical matter-of-fact merchant gladly adds large sums to the cost of his warehouse or shop for the sake of fine architecture and sculptured ornament, and whether he does it to gratify his own taste, or to attract that of his customer, it is equally a proof of the persistence with which beauty worship obtrudes itself into and insists upon elevating and ennobling that which seems most foreign to it. The fact that, amongst uncivilized or uncultivated men, taste often takes on grotesque or bizarre forms, as in the savage's tattooing of his body does not prove that beauty is to be despised, nor that the tendency even in the savage is not an elevating one. Rude and elementary as it may be in form, it is, nevertheless, the germ out of which all culture in art must grow. The pleasure in mere contrast of bright colors, and the perception of the grace of curved lines, will, in time, and with the general expansion of the mind, become an appreciation and love of true art, as certainly as the canoe will grow into the steamship, and barbarous superstitions into lofty systems of philosophy.

MORAL COURAGE.—Have the courage to face a difficulty, lest it kick you harder than you bargained for. Difficulties like thieves often disappear at a glance. Have courage to leave a convivial party at the proper hour for doing so, however great the sacrifice; and to stay away from one upon the slightest grounds for objection, however great the temptation to go. Have the courage to do without that which you do not need, however much you may admire it. Have the courage to speak your mind when it is necessary that you should do so, and hold your tongue when it is better you should be silent. Have the courage to speak to a poor friend in a seedy coat, even in the street, and when a rich one is nigh. The effort is less than many people take it to be, and the act is worthy of a king. Have the courage to admit that you have been in the wrong, and you will remove the fact in the mind of others, putting a desirable impression in the place of an unfavorable one. Have the courage to adhere to the first resolution when you cannot change it for better, and to abandon it at the eleventh hour upon conviction. Have the courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you possess, when he convinces you that he lacks principle. "A friend should bear with a friend's infirmities"—not vices.

BALLOU FOR JULY.—Hot weather is upon us. Excursions and recreations are now in order, and to those who contemplate a ride by rail or steamer we would recommend "Ballou's Magazine" as the one to take to relieve the monotony of a journey. It is full of light reading, just such as all must fancy. In the July number we notice some thirty different articles, besides illustrations and humorous matter. It is the magazine to interest, and can be found all over the country. Every one has a kind word for Ballou's. Published by Thomes & Talbot, 63 Congress Street, Boston, at 15 cents single copies, or $1,50 per year.—Just try it once.

—Reuben Carl, of Hanover, was killed under peculiarly painful circumstances on the 5th inst., While leading a horse with a halter and chain, he tightly wrapped the chain around his hand. The horse became frightened at something and ran off at a rapid rate of speed, throwing Carl to the ground and dragging him about a hundred yards over a rough road. His injuries shortly afterward resulted fatally.

—The counties of Cumberland, Adams Fulton, Franklin, Bedford, Huntingdon and Blair comprises the 7th Normal school district of this State. The Normal school for this district is being built at Shippensburg, and will be known as the Cumberland Valley State Normal School. The building will be 212 feet long and over 150 wide. The corner stone was laid on the 1st inst., by the Masonic fraternity.

No child possessed of ordinary capacity is destitute of curiosity. The process of popular education has, we doubt not, in many instances, so deadened this desire, that many a "mute and inglorious Milton" sleeps in the multitude of common men.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Coughs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to cold and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remidies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residence in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the Ague Cure daily.

For Liver Complaints, arise from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Perpared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN.

A New Era In Medicine.

☞ Let the Suffering and Diseased read the following.

☞ Let all who have been given up by Doctors, and spoken of as incurable, read the following.

☞ Let all who can believe facts, and can have faith in evidence, read the following.

Know all men by these presents. That, on this, the Twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixty-six, personally came Joseph Haydrick to me known as such, and being duly sworn deposed as follows: "That he is the sole general agent for the United States and dependencies thereof for preparations or medicines known as Dr. Maggiel's Pills and Salve, and that the following certificates are verbatim copies to the best of his knowledge and belief.

JAMES EMEITRE, Notary Public,
(L. S.) 14 Wall St. New York.

June 1st, 1866.

DR. MAGGIEL:—I take my pen to write you of my great relief and that the awful pain in my side has left me at last—thanks to your medicine. Oh, Doctor, how thankful I am that I can get some sleep. I can never write it enough. I thank you again and again, and am sure that you are really the friend of all sufferers. I could not help writing to you, and hope you will not take it amiss. JAMES MYERS,
116 Avenue, D.

This is to certify that I was discharged from the army with Chronic Diarrhœa, and have been cured by Dr. Maggiel's Pills.

WILSON HARVEY,
New York, April 7, 1866. 27 Pitt Street.

The following is an interesting case of a man employed in an Iron Foundry, who, in pouring melted iron into a flask that was damp and wet, caused an explosion. The melted iron was thrown around and on him in a perfect shower, and he was burnt dreadfully. The following certificate was given to me, by him, about eight weeks after the accident:

New York, Jan. 11, 1866.

My name is Jacob Hardy; I am an Iron Founder. I was badly burnt by hot iron in November last; my burns healed, but I had a running sore on my leg that would not heal: I tried Maggiel's Salve and it cured me in a few weeks. This is all true and anybody can see me at Jackson's Iron Works, 3d Avenue.

J. HARDY, 119 Greeck St.

EXTRACTS FROM VARIOUS LETTERS.

"I had no appetite; Maggiel's Pills gave me a hearty one."

"Your Pills are marvellous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the house."

"Dr. Maggiel has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave half of one of your Pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day."

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Maggiel's Salve cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Salve behind my ears, and the noise has left."

"Send me two boxes, I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your Pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your Pills by return mail."

I Have over 200 such Testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDERS,

And all erruptions of the skin, the SALVE is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

Thousands who have been the victims of incompetent persons, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they have been deceived, and that the "Poison" has, by the use of "powerful astringents," been dried up in the system, to break out in a more aggravated form, and perhaps after Marriage.

PERSONAL ACTIONS.

But the workingmen must look to themselves individually, for the attainment of a higher degree of prosperity; and those who teach them to look to the State, and to political action as the chief means of raising them to a greater level of prosperity are doing the laboring men very great injury. So that contracts are enforced; so that life and property are secure; so that every young man is freely permitted to learn any trade, or enter any vocation he pleases, and every man is allowed to change that vocation at will; so that no law is made which takes more from the physical laboring class than they ought to pay; so that it provides them with a complete and free system of education—taking the child from the primary school and advancing him to the grammer and high school, and finally sending him to the University without any charge of tuition; the State has done all that it ought to do as an organized corporation.

Franklin has well said, "velvet, scarlet and satin put out the kitchen fire." "You cannot have your loaf and eat it at the same time." You must become a reserved capitalist, securing a home of your own, and become a self-employer by your own determination, perseverance, economical habits and fidelity. Every man must work out his own salvation. A careful comparison of all classes of labor, the wages paid, and the cost of board, made by David A. Wells, the late Commissioner of the revenue, shows that every man engaged in a mechanical employment, and having constant work to do, can save two hundred dollars a year without infringing upon any real comfort. He can have comfortable clothes, wholesome food, a good room, papers, magazines and lectures, and have all the other comforts necessary to a progressive and civilized man, and you can save two hundred dollars per year. It is true, no allowance is made for tobacco chewing, cigar smoking, grog-drinking, and various kinds of expensive sprees and amusements; but the man who is so sensuous that he must have all these, would not be a good citizen or a wealthy man if he had an income of many thousand a year. Self indulgent and sensuous men can squander millions; and to aid them while thep are still in that condition, is pouring water into a sieve.

THE IMPORTANCE OF DOING WORK WELL.

In addition to personal economy, and that earnest consciousness of duty and perseverance which is willing to make self-sacrifices for future independence, there is another road running parallel with this to speedy affluence. He who can do anything, no matter how small a thing, a little better than any one else, need never fear that he will be out of employment or that he will not receive very high reward for his labor. The man who has the reputation of a good mechanic, and does every job intrusted to him with fidelity, will always be eagerly sought after and obtain higher pay than the one who does his work indifferently or slovenly. W once knew a man who had the reputation of being a skillful white-washer, and repairer of rain water cisterns, and of mending plastering, chimneys &c., and humble as this calling was, he had engagements for the whole season, for days and weeks ahead, while other men could scarcely find a job of work to do. Every mechanic ought to take a pride in his calling, not by mere talk and proclamation, but by actual, practical feeling and working. He should form associations with brother mechanics for the purpose of raising his craft to higher skill in order that they may impart to each other new means and methods, wherein excellency may be attained.

THE TRADES UNIONS.

What a sad commentary it is upon our trade unions, and we see every where shiftless and slovenly workers, and when men are recognized by them as members and mechanics who are only botchers, and whose greatest skill seems to be to obtain the highest possible amount of money for the least possible and creditable work. If there are dishonest capitalists, there certainly is no lack of dishonesty in mechanical work.

THE LATE WORKINGMEN'S CONVENTION.

It is pitiful to see how workingmen are misled by brainless demagogues and notoriety-seeking agitators. They do not propose to level up the workingmen, by aiding them individually, and smoothing for them the paths that lead towards honor and competence. Workingmen are told that the great inequalities that exist in the distribution of wealth must be equalized by law. Some of the leaders favor the arbitrary division into equal shares of all existing things, every year or two; but the majority wish to reach this state of things by indirect legislation. Some of the remedies are—to have all estates escheat to the State on the death of the possesor, leaving his widow and children to take care of themselves in any way they know how; to allow no man to own more land than he actually, and by himself, is able to cultivate; to prohibit the payment of interest on the loan of money; to abolish the payment of rents; to abolish gold and silver currency; to prohibit banking; to authorize the State to issue a forced paper currency in enormous quantities which is to be loaned to workingmen; to abolish "custom houses" and all other taxes; and, in fact, to make the State, which is only the representative of the aggregate nation, to furnish free workshops, homes, employment and money to every body, and more particularly to the shiftless, lazy and incompetent and, therefore, poor. How the "State" is to get the money without taxes, and how the "State" is to supply food and clothes, where no one is bound to work or obey, is not stated. The latest philosophy is, "let every man and woman be a law unto himself." When we see so many real grievances and evils that can be remedied, it makes our heart bleed to see our fellow mechanics give heed to these mad theories.

WHY COMMUNISM IS ALWAYS A FAILURE.

It may be regarded a waste of time to say one word in serious refutation of these commonistic errors, and yet they look so dazzling to the dreaming youth, and are urged under so many pleasing disguises, that a few words of explanation may not be out of place. Whenever you decree that the man who does two day's work in one, by a successful invention which has cost him years of toil, shall have no other reward except his living from day to day, you destroy all motive for exertion, and, therefore, general laziness and carelessness take the place of energy. It is proverbial that the Government cannot get its work done as cheaply and efficiently as private corporations, because the element of self-interest is wanting, both in the agents and overseers; and a system of communism is an extension in the most aggravated form of the system of State service complained of. Thus all laws which tend to destroy the motives of exertions, destroy exertion itself; and Jefferson well said, "that nation is governed best which is governed least."

FORCED EQUALITY OF WEALTH NOT PRACTICAL.

Whether we behold the stars or the earth, the land or the sea, climate or temperature, animals or man, we see everywhere the most astounding differences and inequalities. Difference of light, motion, distance and size among the stars, inequalities—such as mountains, swamps and lakes on the land, the burning sands of the Sahara, and the icebergs of Greenland. The same astounding differences are among animals and plants. What can be more annoying than the musquetoe and the Canada thistle, and yet they thrive. So it is with men, their difference in usefulness and power is very great; their earnings, therefore, are different, and their accumulations are not the same. If our utilitarian and communistic philosophers could re-create the earth, they would level the cliffs of the Rocky Mountains, and convert our swamps and lakes into potato patches; they would abolish both the torrid and frigid zones and have the temperature regulated by a grand thermometer. But, fortunately or not, the earth exists with all its inequalities of surface and temperature, and mankind exists with all its manifold differences. We cannot re-create the earth; we must, therefore, jealously guard the rights before the law, of the weak as well as the strong, and afford to the weakest human being the means of self-development. We must try to aid every man, woman and child to become as useful and great as its native powers admit, and this is the only possible solution of the labor problem.

Fellow laborers, if there are other practical remedies, which you can suggest, it is your duty to bring them to light. If you can suggest any additional duties for the State, any additional methods by which each person can be made better, wiser, greater, more honest, industrious or frugal, if you can add to his self respect or self-developing power by any additional duty, safeguard or employment, it is not only your privilege, but your duty to present it for public discussion.

The remedies which we may suggest do not exclude others; but let each workingman consider well how far he has availed himself of the remedies already within his reach. The present is the only time within our reach; the past cannot be recalled; the future may never be ours. Thus, we urge most earnestly upon each and all—not to fix their eyes upon the "good time coming," to the neglect of present opportunities. Do not try to escape from duty; from care, from labor; but meet each day's demand with resolution, and let it be the law of your family, so thoroughly impressed that it will not be disputed and infringed, that in time of health and steady employment something for the future must be saved. O how much of misery, of wretchedness and pain would be averted, if all classes of society would observe this rule.

Another means of personal elevation, is a proper family pride. Let your companions and associates be selected with care. Do not allow your children to associate with any and everybody who comes along. Teach them due deference to intellectual and moral worth in their seniors, keep them strictly at home after night, no boy, under sixteen in a large city, should be allowed to spend his evening from home, unless the parents know where he may be. Private gymnastics, theatricals or singing associations, as well as every innocent and inexpensive amusements, ought to be encouraged among the youth. Nor can you tell them too often, or bring it home in too many different ways, that each youth must think and act for himself, and look to his own exertions for a commanding position in society.

A SAD MEMENTO OF THE WAR.

We have received from the dead letter office of the post office department a small book in an open wrapper, address "Miss Mary Dare, No. 58 Howard street, N. Y.." and bearing the following postmarks: "Champaign, Ill., March 4; New York post office, advertised, March 17; New York, April 22;" "Cannot be found." The book is a copy of "Hardee's Rifle and Light Infantry tactics," vol. 1, edition of 1861, and upon the inside of the cover is a card photograph of a soldierly-looking man, apparently 28 or 30 years of age, dressed in the uniform of a line officer of the United States Army. Under the picture is written, "Captain M. Dare, Sixty-fourth U. S. Vols." Near the upper right hand corner of the book is a bullet hole, the ball having apparently been fired from a musket at short range, as it passed through the entire thickness of the book (254 pages,) cutting away portions of the running title and text. On a fly-leaf of the book is written, "Wounded Feb. 9, 1863, at Moscow, Tenn., while in command of the picket guard." The book was evidently in a breast pocket of Captain Dare's coat when a fatal shot was fired that gave him his death wound.

After the lapse of more than eight years this touching memento of a brave soldier's life and death is sent by some friend or comrade on its way to find the sister or other relative of the dead hero, but looses its way in the mails and ends its journey in the dead letter office.

We trust this notice may fall under the eye of Miss Dare, if she is living, or be brought to the notice of some other friend or acquaintance of Captain Dare, our dead but not forgotten comrade.

Will not the papers of the country republish the facts here set forth?—Grand Army Journal.

VALANDIGHAM AMONG THE PROPHETS.—He accepts the situation; is almost ready to adopt the most extreme views of the most radical Republicans. No saint now so holy as he!

What trick are the Democrats and Copperheads up to now? Why do they now propose to steal the livery of Haven to serve the Devil in?

But the disguise is scarcely half complete; the lion's skin with which this party is striving to array itself, fails to conceal the ears and tail of the less majestic brute whose ignoble proportions the nobler hide but partly covers.

The secession doctrine of state rights is plainly visible, and the perpetuation of the public debt until it shall become such a burden that repudiation will be hailed as a welcome relief are characteristics most prominently obvious.

Republicans should redouble their vigilance.

TROUT RUN, Lycoming county, was almost destroyed by fire, Saturday evening, June the 10th. The fire broke out in the Extract Work's, (the erection of which cost $10,000,) and burned the whole portion of the village railroad, the depot building barely escaping destruction. The Extract Work's together with 12 or 15 houses and stores were destroyed. The loss will not reach far from $225.000. In the short time of one hour, what little there was of Trout Run, was in ashes. A high wind arrose at the time, carrying shingles &c., fully a mile into the mountain back of the place, setting it on fire, but for the timely rain of Saturday evening, undoubtedly there would have been a larger destruction of property.

CONSUMPTION.—Notwithstanding the many articles advertised to cure consumption, we do not believe when seated too long it can be cured. But we do know of hundreds of cases where persons were supposed to be suffering under that fatal disease, who have become perfectly well and robust from the use of Speer's Port Grape Wine. Many times people for years waste and at last die from diseases of the Kidneys of Glands, when they were supposed to have and were treated for Consumption. A long continued affection of the kidneys, however may eventually result in Consumption. Speer's Wine used alone, or taken with a fresh raw egg or new milk, daily, has been found to be an excellent remedy, and has the reputation of rendering a perfect cure for Consumption.—Medical Times.

The wine certainly contains valuable properties; let our physicians and invalids try it. To be had of druggists.

For the Republican.

MUSICAL.—As the Bald Eagle Express steamed up to the station at Unionville the other evening we were surprised by the sound of Martial Music, and much more so when we found that it proceeded from the Unionville Drum Corps which is now fully equipped and under the supervision of the Fifer, Mr. L. B. Barthurst. With the exception of the Bass drummer, M. Edward Barton, it is composed of small boys of which Mr. Barthurst is justly proud. Alexander Shipley, the eldest is twelve years of age, Joseph Barton, ten while Mortie W. Geary, the baby drummer, has arrived at the mature age of six Summers, and with their sparkling new uniforms, perfect time and manly bearing, they are a sight worth seeing. A. J.

THE GOLDEN AGE.—This is the name of a paper published every Wednesday at No. 9 Spruce street, N. Y., next door to Tribune building, by Theodore Tilton, Editor and Publisher. Of Mr. Tilton, we need not speak as he is universally known as a superior newspaper man. The price of the paper is $3,00 a year cash in advance. We have seen but one copy of the paper, as yet we cannot tell whether we like or dislike it. It is for sale however at the Post Office Book Store, James Welch Proprietor. We have faith in Mr. Tilton, and therefore believe the Golden Age will prove a success and a first class paper.

—According to the Eagle, the opening of the railroad has infused new energy into the ancient and honorable borough of Butler, and new houses are going up, new streets being opened, and signs of renewed vigor are everywhere apparent.

Drunkenness and its Curses—No. 14.

BY REFORMATION.

Friends of the cause of temperance—in my last article (No. 13,) I brought before the public that declaration of Scripture which, in itself, should be sufficient to arouse every honest and candid thinking man or woman in our land, to seek at once their true situation, as regards their own welfare in the sight of God, as well as the influence brought to bear, through our conduct and actions upon our neighbors,—they who fill high positions among us on earth. They have, no doubt, looked upon these articles with contempt, and as not worthy of a passing notice, as it was in the days that Christ stood weeping over "Jerusalem," so is it now. And through our rulers of the carnal law are we daily cursed with the great engine of destruction, viz: the license law; over which Christ stands weeping to-day, as it was in the days of the Scribes and Pharisee's, so is it today. Fill ye up them the measure of your fathers. Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?—Matt. xxiii, 32-33 v. Thus reads the declaration of Him who you profess to venerate and love. You claim exemption from guilt in executing the license law, from the fact that you find it upon our statute book. And under oath you are bound to execute it, when the application for a license is made subject to the provisions of this monster of death. And thus do you go on filling up the measure of your fathers. Notwithstanding, you feel the promptings of the Spirit of Him, who is now weeping over your act of transgression. Not only to the casting out of your own comfort and peace of mind; but you are instrumental in placing in the hands of others, the the means of destruction, whereby, thousands upon thousands of your fellow creatures are deprived of the means of grace, and in the end sink down to eternal perdition. Under an oath was the head of John the Baptist placed in a charger. And why was the King sorry—yes exceedingly sorry for what he had done? He felt the condemnation of God upon him. And all they who upbold the license law, cannot but feel—in a language not to be misunderstood the like condemnation resting upon them. You might say what has the beheading of John the Baptist, by Herod, to do with the granting of license. Not anything, whatever, in one sense, only thus—why did he feel "exceedingly sorry?" Simply because the spirit of Divine truth convicted him of murder.

And what is the workings of the license law, but death, sorrow, misery and destruction in its most hellish form? Now what better are the supporters of the license law in the sight of God, than Herod? He well knew what he was doing before he issued his order or sent his executioner to the prison to behead John the Baptist, that in so doing he was a doomed man. And in what better condition do you stand in the sight of God, when you know, to grant a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors is to the injury of all around you? Will the fact of finding this law of destruction upon our statute book, be of sufficient power to exempt you from the wrath of an outraged God? I know I am making use of plain talk on this matter. I informed you in the beginning that was my intention, and I hope to be able before I close on this subject, to be much plainer than what I have been.

The ground upon which you stand is dangerous, and before you are fully aware it may give from under you. Had you not better examine more fully in a prayer-seeking manner, the office of the Holy Ghost or Holy Spirit, before granting another license? "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my thone, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the spirit saith unto the churches.—Rev. 3rd, 21-22 v. And does not the same spirit speak to your heart, to my heart, and to every individual heart and conscience upon earth? We dare not deny this, and when we see the drunkard reeling in our streets, pitching, raving, swearing like a mad man, are we not called upon to stay this mighty evil? The drunkard destroys his life. The drunkard is as really a suicide, as if he compassed his death, by the pistol, or the rope. The difference is, principally, that that the destruction is slower, and accomplished by a long succession of sins. No reputation, no wisdom, nor hardly any worth, will secure man against drunkenness. This sin is found in the cottage, and in the palace, in the study of the philosopher, and in the sacred desk, in the hall of council, and on the bench of justice; and contrary to what would seem the dictates of nature, as well as delicacy, in the female sex, even in instances where destruction, understanding, amiableness and refinement would appear to forbid even the suspicion. In most, if not all, of these cases, the evil creeps insensibly on the unhappy subject, and overcomes him before he is aware. A prime object, to be here regarded, is therefore, to keep the danger always before our eyes. We are ever to feel, that we ourselves are always in danger, and to consider an habitual, lively dread of it as our first safety. We are to form, also, vigorous and standing resolutions, that we will not be overcome. These we are invariably to form in the fear of God, with a solemn recollection of His presence, with an humble dependence on Him to bless us, and with fervent supplications for His blessing to strengthen our resolutions, and to keep our fears awake. We are to make the miserable victims of this sin with anxiety and terror, to regard the sin itself as the highway to hell, and to realize, that in yielding to it we seal our own reprobation.

Those who vend ardent spirits will continue to supply their customers, in many instances after they have ceased to be competent to take care of their money or property. They are witnesses to their dealing with a slack hand, their improvidence, and the accumulation of their debts, and to save themselves this ill-gotten gain, obtain mortgages on the property of these wretched victims, which they soon foreclose, and wind up the scene by sending the weeping mother and her helpless children out of their once happy home to beg or starve. And these mortgages are upon record in the same court, where the license was obtained by these venders, through, and by which the wives and children of these wretched victims was robbed of their homes. And are they not in this way, accessory—both the vender and court—to the melting away of estates, and the ruin of families around them? And can all this be done without violating the laws of humanity and equity? Thus far human law has failed to prevent this wrong; but the cries of widows and orphans will be heard in Heaven, and a retribution, which human tribunals cannot award, will be reserved for the day of judgement. Is it not an "evil covetousness" that accumulates either money or estates by such methods? It is like building a town with blood, and establishing a city by iniquity. And can those who do this, escape the woe denounced against them "that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth his bottle to him and maketh him drunken also" And can the court who granted the vender the license to do this, seperate its guilt from that of the vender? Can the Ethiopian change his color or skin or the Leopard his spotts? Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton, ye have nourished hearts, as in a day of slaughter.—James v. 5 v.

A BEAUTIFUL young damsel, who delighted in the rare and euphoneous appellation of Mary, possessed a diminutive creature of the genus lam kenus, whose capillary appendage was as white as particles of congealed moisture commonly called snow. Everywhere that Mary peregrinated, the little quadruped was inclined to accompany her. He followed her to the Literary Institution one day, a proceeding diametrically opposed to the rules thereof for it incited the members of the youthful generation to loud cachinnations and frolicsome infantile gambols, to see one of the genus lam kenus where only the genus homo were accustomed to congregate. Then the pedagogue unanimously excluded and excommunicated him, but still he lingered in the vicinity of those hallowed precincts, in patient waiting until his visual organs were gladdened by the appearance of the aforesaid Mary. Then without delay he propelled himself rapidly toward her, and trustingly laid his prenological developments upon the prolongation of her shoulder, as if to say: "I am no longer faint-hearted. Who's afraid? You will avert all threatening peril."

—A young girl of Williamsport, who had been attending boarding school at Bethlehem, eloped with a gambler and sailed from New York for Europe on the 31st ult., The father of the girl arrived hastily at the dock and hour after the vessel had sailed, and wept bitterly on ascertaining the hopelessness of his attempt to stop the run-aways.

Pins.

There are eight pin factories in the United States, whose annual production is 2,000,000 packs, each pack containing 3,360 pins, a total of 6,720,000,000 pins. One manufacturer's agent in Boston, says the Bulletin, sells every six months from 700 1,000 cases of pins, each case containing 672,000 pins. The factory he represents turns out eight tons of pins per week. Hair pins are jobbed by the cask. There is but one factory that produces them. They turn out fifty tons per month. The machine that cuts and bends the wire makes 360 hair pins per minute, ready for Japanning. Yankee pins are saleable in nearly every city of the world, and the production and consumption increases each year about ten per cent. A very large per centage of the hair pins in general use are imported. The tariff does not protect this item of America industry; hence the public pay for them just about one-third more than they are worth. Yankee enterprise is now seeking to develop a more rapid manufacture and a more desirable metal or substance, and in this way to successfully compete with foreign makes and cut down the cost.

The Great Medical Discovery!

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands

Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful Solvent and Diuretic, thus cleansing the blood of all impurities through the Liver, Kidneys and other Organs of the system.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION.

Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle.

A Man Remarries his Wife After Twenty Years' Separation.

An Iowa paper, the Mount Pleasant Journal, has this account of a romance:

Twenty- six years ago the beautiful city of Salem, as now, was peopled with some of the best families in Iowa. Here resided the family of James M'Whorter, and James and his wife were happy. After a while there came the news of gold discoveries in California, and stories of how men could find fortunes. James hearing these stories, decided to bid adieu to his wife for a short time, fill his pockets with the glittering metal and the return to his Rebecca. The farewell was said, and wife and husband parted. M'Whorter went to California. The letters came and went as fast as Uncle Sam's carrier could take them. As the novel writers say, "time wore on apace," the weeks walked off into months, and the months galloped into years, and, as the story comes to us, James M'Whorter and his wife were separated by the wilful and malicious lying and misrepresentation of evil doers.

Word was sent back to the wife that her husband was the husband of another. Letters ceased to go to and from; the separation became apparently permanent, and wound up with a divorce. Mrs. M'Whorter in time became Mrs. Abbott, and, after a time her husband died, leaving her a widow. Some two years ago a gentleman came from California, direct from the place where Mr. M'Whorter resided, and he denied all the reports that had been circulated concerning that gentleman, reporting him to be an honorable man, doing well and prospering in worldly matters. After his return to California, a reconcilliation was commenced, letters bearing words of love again commenced to pass to and fro, and on last Friday, James M'Whorter and Rebecca Abbott were again joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. This is the story as it came to us.

The Printing Press at Work.

Miss. Josephine Freytag, in Unsere Zeit, gives some curious facts concerning the literary productiveness of recent times, especially in Germany, a few of which we copy.

It is 400 years since printing was invented; yet the first three centuries of the art together produced less printed matter than one year now. The printing press has gone to the ends of the earth; so that there are now twenty nine journals published regularly in South Africa, nearly fifty in Australia, twelve in Van Dieman's Land and six in the Sandwich Islands.

In the production of new books Germany takes the lead of all nations with reference to quantity, and doubtless to quality as well. In the number of new books France is second, England third, and the United States fourth; while, strange to say, in the number of newspapers circulated they rank in directly the reverse order. But, reckoning by the number of copies of books printed, instead of the number of new works, Germany ranks far below this country. The most popular books ever published there scarcely reach a circulation of twenty-five thousand copies, while here many a successful novel has been sold by hundreds of thousands.

Curious Extracts Of Wills.

From the will of General Blackett, Governor of Plymouth, proved 1782:

"I desire my body to be kept so long as it may not be offensive; and that one of my toes or fingers to be cut off to secure a certainty of my being dead. I further request my dear wife that, as she has been troubled with one old fool, she will not think of marrying a second."

From the will of the Rev. Dr. Appleby, of St. Bride's, proved 1783:

"I leave my body to be dressed in a flannel waistcoat, an old surtout coat, and breeches without linings and pockets; no shoes (having done walking), and a worsted wig, if one can be got, in order that I may rest comfortably."

From the will of a Mariner of Bristol, proved 1795:

"My executors to pay, out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I give as a token of my love, that she may buy hazlenuts, as I know she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

A PHYSICIAN in the Grand Army Journal tells this ghastly joke: I remember one day in making my hospital rounds, a patient, just arrived, presented me an amputated forearm, and in doing so could scarcely refrain from a broad laugh; the titter was constantly on his face. "What is the matter? This does not strike me as a subject of laughter." "It is not, doctor but excuse me. I lost my arm in so funny a way that I still laugh when I look at it. Our first sergeant wanted shaving badly, and got me to attend to it, as I am corporal. We went together in front of his tent; I had lathered him, took him by the nose, and was applying the razor when a cannon ball came, and that was the last I saw of either his head or my arm. Excuse me, doctor, for laguhing as I do, but I'll be especially blasted if I ever saw such a bully thing."

COMPLETION OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.
GREAT RUSH TO STERNBERG'S.
Sung to the tune of Yankee Doodle.

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And now complete connections made,
An enterprising notion.

The mighty work at last is done,
So speedy and brisk, oh!
And now in ten days we can run
From here to San Francisco.

No more we take the ancient route,
The stage, a horrid slow thing;
It banged the passengers about
And wore out all their clothing.

CHORUS, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. STERNBERG,
A most delightful notion.

Through passengers by the Pacific Railroad will call at the store of A. Sternberg, before starting, and provide themselves with a complete outfit of Spring and Summer clothing, the very best assortment of which will always be found at A. Sternberg's Store.
People who travel by other routes, and also people who, instead of travelling by any route at all, prefer to stay at home, can find the most superior and seasonable garments, for every occasion, of every variety, and at the lowest price.
Do not fail to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere; if you do not, we are sure you will be sorry that you did not. Our goods are put down to the lowest figure. We sell whole suits, according to quality.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, June 21, 1871.

HOME NEWS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A letter written from Elizabeth City, N. C., by our old friend C. C. Price, will appear next week. It speaks of this sections in the most glowing terms.

AMELIA.—Your communication has been held over for further consideration. It hardly contains sufficient of interest for our columns.—Whether it appears or not, try again.

LADY.—Your timely hits will appear in our next issue.

A DEMOCRAT.—We like the style of your communication, we like the truths it contains, and hope that hundreds in your ranks will begin to see as you do. As you say "your convention admits all the Republicans have done to be right" and that you "will therefore put yourself right by joining that party, we should like to publish your communication and will do so if you will send us your name. Not for publication, but in self defence as rule is to publish no Communication unless accompanied by the writers name. Please send us your name and more letters. Work earnestly for the loyal cause.

BIG WHEAT.—John M. Wagner, on his farm in Bald Eagle valley near Milesburg has a magnificent yield of wheat. In walking through his field on Saturday last he plucked several heads some of which contained 69 plump good grains. He says he can find plenty more of the same kind. Can any of our Penn's. or Nittany valley farmers beat this?

EXAMINATIONS.—The Bellefonte Academy which is in a very flourishing condition, commenced its examinations on Monday last. These examinations will continue throughout this week and close on Monday next. Rev. J. P. Hughes, Principal of the Academy is certainly a great teacher. The parents and citizens are invited to attend these examinations.

AMUSING.—It was really amusing to see the company of ladies and gentlemen who had been caught in the shower on Sunday last, riding through our streets, at full speed, endeavoring to find some shelter. Pell-mell they went, but the rain continued to pour down nevertheless. We must say, they were good horsemen. Our merchants will make a sale of new hats soon.

ACCIDENT.—On last Friday while the children of D. G. Bush, Esq., of this place, were at play in the stable, they concluded that the cutting box was rather a curious piece of machinery, and in attempting to satisfy their curiosity in regard to the manner in which it worked little George had two of his fingers cut off. We understand the little fellow after suffering severe pain is now doing well.

DIED.—Mott Kech died at his residence in Burnside twp., this county, from the effects of a blow received by a stone thrown by some person whose name, as yet, we have not learned. He received the stroke on the day of the Forepaugh circus, which was the 13th of May. He suffered great pain from the time he was struck until death came to his relief. We do not envy the man's feelings who threw the stone.

SHINGLE MILL.—One of the institutions of our town is the Bellefonte Shingle Mill, now under the supervision of T. J. Strait & Son formerly of Williamsport, we believe. The Messrs. Strait are very excellent men and are doing a good business at their mill. On Monday last we were pleased to see the mill race floating full of shingle bolts which had been unloaded from a car of the B. & S. S. R. R. directly into the race. Our town is looking up.

IMPORTANT.—At the meeting held by the stock holders of the L. C. & S. C. R. R., in Philadelphia June 13th, the following Preamble and Resolution were adopted, to wit:

WHEREAS, Upon a full investigation of the merits of the Narrow Guage for Railroads, as to economy of construction and operation, it is believed that it would be advisable to adopt such guage for the line of the L. C. & S. C. R. R. from Tyrone to Lewisburg, therefore

Resolved, That the stockholders recommend to the Board of Directors to establish the gauge of the L. C. & S. C. R. R. from Tyrone to Lewisburg at three (3) feet.

PIC NIC.—The enterprising Logan Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., will hold their second Annual Picnic on the 21st day of July next. This company is composed of the best young men of our town, and have, upon several occasions shown how efficiently and earnestly they can work at a fire. This company is a necessity and the property-holders and citizens generally should put forth every effort to make their picnic a grand success. We wish the boys a "merrie" time.

THE L. C. & S. C. R. R.—At a meeting of the stock holders of this railroad, held in Philadelphia on the 13th inst., the election for officers resulted as follows: Geo. F. Miller, President; Edward I. Say, Hermon I. Lombard, Edmund Smith, Wm. I. Howard, Jas. P. Coburn, R. H. Dupcan, and William Phillips were elected Directors. B. Ayres, Esq., declined a re-election, and Col. Wm. Phillips, President of the Allegheny Valley R. R., was elected in his stead. Wistar Morris, Esq., having determined upon a visit to Europe, declined an election and H. I. Lombard, Esq., Vice President of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., was elected in his stead. These officers are all first class men and we now look for the speedy completion of our great Pennsvalley enterprise.

MORE CATTLE.—Last week, we published the weight of ten cattle fed by Mr. Undercoffler, on the farm of E. C. Humes. Esq. Now for the purpose of encouraging our farmers to turn their attention a little more to the subject of feeding cattle, we report the weight of ten cattle fed by H. N. McAllister, Esq., upon his model farm near town. We need not speak of Mr. McAllister in this county as a scientific farmer, for he is known throughout the State as one of the most scientific and successful farmers. Last fall he commenced feeding ten cattle. They were well cared for. A few weeks since he sold them to Amos Mullen & Co., successors to that Prince of butchers B. V. Black. The smallest two of the lot, when butchered, weighed together 2595 pounds, the two heaviest weighed 2960 pounds. The ten together weighed 13,891 and averaged 1390 pounds. These cattle dressed 58 pounds nett to the cwt. Mr. McAllister deserves great credit for his efforts in this direction, and Amos Mullen & Co., deserve the patronage of the public for the efforts they are making to supply our market with the best of meat. Any more large cattle, report.

REMOVAL.—The Centre County Banking Institution has been removed from its former business place to the room, known as No. 1 in the Brokerhoff block. Henry Brokerhoff, Esq., is President and J. D. Shugart is Cashier of this bank. As financiers both of these gentlemen have acquired an enviable reputation. The first a millionaire, and the latter in a fine way to become one. The new room No. 1 in the Brokerhoff House, has been repaired and refitted in such a manner as to make it far superior to any other room in the town. It is when we take into consideration its marble floors, and its walnut furniture far superior to any of the other banking rooms in town. The clerks of this bank, Mr. J. Kurts, A. G. Curtin, Jr., and Charles Cook are a part of the institution, and more, they are an honor to it. Altogether it is a good Bank—a nice room, good clerks, and gain the confidence of the people by taking very good care of their money.

EXCURSION.—The Democratic Editors accompanied by many of our citizens, took an excursion, last week, to the top of Nittany Mountain. Here they looked into and over the wealthy and lovely Pennsvalley, and were delighted, exclaiming that they had never witnessed so grand a view. If the citizens of Philadelphia and other places, who visit the sea shore and other places of summer resort, were only apprised of the beauties of our county—Pennsvalley, Snow Shoe, &c., our clear spring water, our hunting and fishing grounds, we are certain they would spend their summers here, and be greatly benefitted. The cost would be much less, while the benefits to health and mind would be far superior. Come and see our romantic town and country. Drink our pure water and breath our pure air.

UNSAFE.—The rapidity with which the piers are crumbling away, which supports the new extention of the bridge across Spring creek, on High street, is such as to cause it to be unsafe for horses and loaded wagons to pass over. The upper pier has fallen to so great extent as to render no support at all, and all the support the bridge has at that point is a girder, the outer end of which rests on a delicate post, and the inner on a small and unreliable portion of the stone wall, which is uncertain and dangerous in the extreme. The attention of Council and Street Commissioners, should be given to the matter at once, and arrangements made for its immediate repair. If not, a team of horses and wagon, and even life, they may have to compensate, as a consequence.

DRUG STORE.—Messrs Linn & Wilson, successors to F. S. Wilson, dec'd., have now in their neat new brick building adjoining the Hardware store of Irwin & Wilson, one of the handsomest rooms in the interior of the State. It is painted and finished in the best style. Their Drug Store is a model. They keep constantly on hand a large supply of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Brushes, fancy and toilet soaps together with an endless variety of everything usually kept in a Drug Store. John B. Linn, the senior member of the firm resided formerly in Lewisburg where he is universally esteemed as a gentleman, good citizen and correct business man. Dr. James Hillibish, that chief of druggists retains his position in the store and prepares all prescriptions. We wish this firm great success. See advertisement.

BOOKS.—John I. Rankin of the Model Book Store, will receive this day, (Wednesday) the largest stock of stationery, books, blank books &c., &c., ever brought to this place. He is determined to accommodate and supply the people. Call and see him.

The M. E. Sunday School of this place, will hold its regular quarterly concert of reviews on next Sabbath afternoon, at half past two o'clock. All patrons and friends of the school are invited to be present.

DEMOCRATIC EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.—On Tuesday the 13th inst., the Democratic Editorial Association met in this place, in the Assembly rooms of the Bush House. There were about forty Editors present, and to be engaged in so bad a cause as they have been, for so long a time, and some of them through the dark days of the rebellion, we must pay them the compliment of being rather a good looking and well behaved body of men. We were not present at the convention and cannot, therefore report the proceedings.

We were however, present, by invitation at the supper prepared for these men and the citizens of the place at the Bush House. It was a trout supper. The spotted beauties were supplied in abundance and cooked to suit the taste of the most fastideous. As a trout supper it was a grand success and does honor to the Proprietor of the house—Frank McClain, as well as to his excellent lady. The ice cream and strawberries were superb. The toasts and speeches after supper we thought were all a little tame. We looked for better and sharper things from the assembled wisdom of the Democratic press of Pa. But we will not find fault. They did, no doubt the best they could, especially our friend Mr. Woodruff of Cambria county, in his great effort to show how strongly the Democratic party was in favor of the free school system. In his remarks he paid a glowing tribute to the intelligence and integrity and love of liberty, of the great Republican party. We are glad you came to our town gentlemen. You know that you were perfectly welcome, and we hope you will come again. The Philadelphia Age in speaking of this convention contains the following:

"The meeting of the Pennsylvania Editorial Association, still in progress, was begun most auspiciously, by the assemblage of the Democratic editors in Convention, at Bellefonte, Centre county. To the usual business was added the most harmonious and agreeable personal intercourse, not only among themselves, but with the people of that beautiful and hospitable city. They joined, without distinction of party, in a most courteous welcome to their visitors. On the evening of the 13th, an entertainment was given at the Bush House, one of the finest hotels in Pennsylvania, and among the company were the most esteemed citizens of the vicinity. The hatchet of political strife was buried for the time; the calumet of peace went round, and the occasion was in every respect one that will be long remembered with unmingled satisfaction, by all who participated in it. The ordinary attractions, indeed, of this delightful spot ought to draw thither the travellers and tourists, who in the summer season, seek a cool, salubrious climate, fine sport, and beautiful scenery. The woods and streams abound in game; the accommodations for travellers are of the best character, and those who visit Bellefonte for a short time will have but one regret—that they cannot stay longer. The Editorial Association of the State assembled at Williamsport on the 14th inst., and thence proceeded on an excursion to Watkin's Glen."

ROUND HOUSE.—The Bellefonte and Snow Shoe R. R. Co., have commenced the erection of a Round House in the vicinity of the Glass Works in this place, of the capacity to contain eight locomotives. The contractor is our enterprising friend, Charles McCafferty, who has erected about as many houses, and done as much as any other man for the beautifying and advancement of our romantic town. He has through his indomitable perseverence and faithful manner in which he performs his contracts, made for himself a first class reputation as a business man and a contractor. We feel confident the Round House will be well built, a beautiful improvement to our town, and an honor both to the Railroad Co., and to Charles McCafferty. Let our home mechanics and workingmen be employed and all will be right.

PERSONAL.—We understand that B. Scott, Jr., of Scott's Art Gallary Philadelphia, and favorably known to many of our citizens, is here and proposes to make a public sale of Fine Oil Paintings, in the room opposite the Bush House. The sale will be without reserve.

—The charter of the borough of Kennett Square, Chester county, upon the petition of over two-thirds of the taxpayers, has been so amended by a decree of the court as to make unlawful forever in that place the sale of intoxicating liquors.

A fair trial only is needed to convince the most skeptical, that Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will accomplish all that is claimed for it.

AN editor in town whose name for modesty's sake, we will not mention, "caned," on Saturday evening last, by those two genial gentlemen, Mr. Edwin H. Kinsloe and Mr. Fred S. Case, special agents of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford. The cane, a very handsome one, was presented by Mr. Kinsloe in a few well chosen remarks, after which Col. Brown, of the REPUBLICAN, who was present, indulged in a very eloquent little speech, expressive more fully of the sentiments of the donors toward the presentee, and of his own good wishes and kindly sentiments. Of course, the fellow who got caned responded as best he could, and the occasion passed off quite pleasantly.

The Travelers Insurance Company which is so ably represented by our accomplished friends, Kinsloe and Case, is the best institution of the kind in the country, and can boast of the two best special agents. Both Kinsloe and Case are indomitable workers, and succeed in doing an immense amount of business. The general agent of the company, Mr. Alex. M. Dean, by the way, is a first class man himself, and manages the affairs of the company with great skill and prudence.—Democratic Watchman.

We were present at the above named caning process; and we have no hesitancy in endorsing all the Editor—J. W. Furey—says in regard to it. But why should "Joe" be so modest, as not to tell his readers that he was the man so highly favored? It is a false modesty. Is not Joe W. Furey the brains of the Watchman? Does he not make it all the reputation it has? "Honor to whom honor is due," is our motto, and if P. G. Meek has the money, Joe W. Furey has the brains. We know how "Joe" got his brains; but for the life of us we cannot tell how P. G. Meek got the money. It may be that "Jim Burns" could tell. But we are not on politics in our locals. We merely want to say that the Travelers Insurance Company, is one of the greatest institutions of America. Indeed, it is the pride and boast of our country. Its general agent Alex. M. Dean, Esq., and its special agents E. H. Kinsloe and Fred S. Case, Esq's., by their general character and actions prove that the general officers of the company are worthy the confidence of a confiding public. The reason given by us, is, that men who choose such agents, general and special, prove by their conduct, that they are judges of human nature, and thus prove themselves worthy of confidence. They caned Joe W. Furey, but they are too small to cane us. It takes a man to cane the Editor of the REPUBLICAN. Let any one who doubts this, try it. It is a standing chalange. As Case and Kinsloe think themselves first class men let them try it, if they dare. It was amusing to hear Mr. Furey's speech upon this "glorious 'casion." We have not space to report it.

THE SCHOOL-BOOK LAW.—The bill "to prevent frequent changes in school-books," the Harrisburg Patriot says, has passed both branches of the legislature, and is now a law. The purpose of this law is certainly a good one. It is estimated that during the last decade the people of the State have been taxed at the rate of two millions and a half of dollars per annum in the purchase of school books. The immense burden was put upon them through the venality or weakness of directors and county superintendents, who ordered changes in books from year to year. This bill will relieve the people from an expense that is at the same time enormous and useless. It provides as follows:

SECTION 1. That, hereafter the board of directors of any district, the controllers in cities and boroughs of any school superintendent, shall not order or make any change in the school books or series of text books used in any school under his or their superintendence, direction or control more than once in every period of three years, and any laws or parts of law inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

SECTION 2. Any school director, controller or superintendent who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced by the court to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and be deprived of his office.

HOW TO MANAGE KEROSENE LAMPS.—Our ears are every day pained by accounts of kerosene lamps exploding, and killing, or scarring for life, men, women or children. A simple knowledge of the inflammable nature of the fluid would probably put a stop to nearly all the accidents. As the oil burns down in the lamps, a highly inflammable gas gathers over its surface, and as the oil decreases the gas increases. When the oil is nearly consumed, a slight jar will often inflame the gas, and an explosion is sure to follow, dealing death and destruction. A bombshell is not more to be dreaded. Now if the lamp is not allowed to burn more than half way down, such accidents are impossible. Always fill your lamps every morning; then you never need fear any explosion.

GROCERIES.—Our active, energetic Grocers Messrs. Ruhl & Gault, have just received another large supply of syrups, sugars, coffee, tea, hams, cheese, canned fruits, dried fruits, together with a large variety of articles needed in every family. They are clever men, and have determined not to be undersold, nor out done in politeness to their customers. See advertisement.

About twelve schools which failed to report have been estimated as accurately as possible.

Nineteen new schools have been organized by means of the County Sabbath School Association, and by other agencies, since the first of January.

More than eleven hundred persons in all have been gathered into these new schools.

Schools from which the largest number of communicants have been received into the churches, during the year, report also the largest comparative number of adult scholars.

The prosperity of the churches in the county is in almost exact proportion to the interest which they manifest in their Sabbath Schools.

The Union Schools, which are such from necessity, as well as from choice, are for the most part, in a flourishing condition.

The statistical table, gratifying as it is in many respects, plainly shows that the present condition of our county loudly calls for the faithful use of every suitable means for elevating the standard of teaching, and more thoroughly realizing the great objects of the Sabbath School—that of imparting a knowledge of the Word of God to the young, so that it may be the power of God unto their salvation.

A map has been constructed, the same size as the county map, which shows the location etc., of all the Sabbath schools in the county.

In the prosecution of his labors in Centre county, since April first, the missionary has traveled six hundred and three miles, made one hundred and sixteen family visits and delivered twenty-seven sermons and addresses.

Our friends and co-workers in all parts of the county have abundant occasion to "thank God and take courage."

UNPATENTED LANDS.—The Harrisburg State Journal says: Among the general laws passed by the last Legislature and approved by the Governor, is the following, which is of importance to all owners of unpatented lands. We understand that efforts were made to modify its provisions, but without success, from which it is evident that it is the policy of the State to have this long unsettled business closed up as speedily as possible, and this is commendable since not only the interests of the State, but the security of purchasers of real estate, whose titles may be affected thereby, require it:

Be it enacted, &c., That the board of property shall have full and discretionary power as to the time of entering suits, and the number thereof, to be brought for the collection or liens against unpatented lands, and the Attorney General shall proceed under the seventh section of the said act, to which this is a further supplement, when authorized to do so by the said board. Provided. That no interest shall be charged on patent or other fees.

Thieves! KNAVES!! SWINDLERS!!!—These are mild terms with which to designate those mean contemptible adventures, who have been induced by the high reputation which Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has won to put up and offer for sale a worthless imitation of this celebrated medicine. Remember that Dr. Pierce's private Stamp, which is the only positive guarantee of genuineness, should be upon every package. This private stamp, issued by the U. S. Government ex-pressly for stamping Dr. Pierces's medicines, has upon it his portrait, name and address, and the words "U. S. Certificate of Genuineness." Don't get swindled by men calling themselves Dr. Sage; Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. is the only man now living that has the right and can prepare the genuine and original D. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents.

BASE BALL.—The second of a series of games for the base ball championship, was played on Saturday afternoon the 10th inst., between the Boalsburg and Milesburg clubs, on the grounds of the latter. It was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The game was well contested throughout. The Milesburg club coming off victorious with a score of 26 to 45. The Boalsburg boys played magnificently, and might have won the game, were it not for the balks made by an unqualified Umpire. We understand the next game will be played at Centre Hall.

THE Manufacturer and Builder for June is an excellent number, full of practical information on industrial matters, and enriched with fine engravings profusely illustrating the text. The opening illustrated article on stone and ore-breaking by machinery is of immediate importance to all who have to do with road-making or the preparation of ores or minerals. That on the spectroscope is interesting to those of a scientific turn of mind; while that on explosions is of general interest, and fully explains the principles underlying the various agents. Another generally interesting article is that on the atmospheric telegraph, which tells how, by compressing with the hand a small flexible bulb filled with air, atmospheric waves are made to communicate intelligence through a tube thousands of feet long. This is an eminently practical and cheap system of household telegraphy which all will appreciate. Mechanics will be pleased with the articles on how to take care of steam-boilers, manufacture of glue, new water-proof and fire-proof paint, and the like; builders and architects with those on science in architecture, construction of spiral stairs, etc.; while men of every trade and profession will find in the columns devoted to correspondents a fund of technical information surprising in its variety and practical utility. It is with pleasure that we learn of the continued success of this really meritorious periodical, and can but wish that it may find its way still more extensively into the hands of the working and thinking men of our community. It is published at the remarkably low rate of $1.50 per annum, by Western & Company, 37 Park Row, New York, and comprises 32 pages handsomely printed, and stitched in covers.

Frugality may be termed the daughter of prudence, the sister of temperance, and the parent of liberty! He that is extravagant will quickly become poor, and poverty will enforce dependence and invite corruption.
